

Disaster Relief and Crop Insurance

Join us for a discussion to learn about disaster relief and crop insurance programs available through the USDA. The Farm Service Agency delivers timely, effective programs and services to America's farmers and ranchers to support them in sustaining our Nation's vibrant agricultural economy, as well as to provide first-rate support for domestic and international food aid efforts. The Risk Management Agency secures America's agricultural future by providing effective risk management products and education programs that strengthen the economic stability of producers and communities nationwide. Discuss and share resources that will be helpful to your agricultural extension work.
